

Helping Children SEE Christmas

Matthew 16:16

Christ came to earth that we ALL might see the goodness of God. That's the way it has always been with us humans...we don't believe until we see it with our own eyes. This is especially true of Christmas and of children... what they see is what they remember. The three activities presented here are some of the best I have come across in forty years of working with inner city children. The common idea is: Don't waste Christmas. Make Christmas something that will last your child(ren) through eternity.

1. Be Creative

Maybe covering one whole wall or a part of a wall in your home or apartment with white paper and get out the crayons. (If a whole wall is a bit much for your home settle for a piece of posterboard for each child. You can even tape the posterboards together to make something sort of like a tree or manger. (If you need something to start the children thinking ask your pastor if he has any old greeting cards...cards featuring "The baby Jesus" ... "The Christ"... or "Immanuel (God with us)".

After drawing the nativity read a little of the Christmas story from the Bible (begin with Matthew chapters 1 and 2) and ask the children to listen close and choose what they want to draw. In the end you should have something a lot nicer than a tree. The kids will be more likely to get involved if they see you try one of your own. At least a small one for the fridge. The idea is that for children Christmas should be something they can see. Your church or Sunday School might do something similar for the church alcove or in individual classrooms. Covering a whole wall with white paper might seem like a lot of trouble but it could also be a lot of fun. A simpler alternative would be each child drawing on a sheet of typing paper.

2. The Gifts Of Christmas

Second, give the same kind of gifts Christ gave. A good starting place for children is to cut out some paper shapes (circles are just fine) and write the name of one of the gifts Christ brought with Him when He came to earth. My own list would read something like: Peace, Hope, Love, Forgiveness, Comfort, Salvation, etc. Make the ornaments big and put them on your walls or make the ornaments small and put them on your tree. Most of all, help your children make a set of ornaments for your family and friends. It is not easy for some children to find something they can give. This little set of ornaments could be the best gift anyone on their list ever received. It could also set their feet on the path to true giving. Most important of all, it could shape their lifetime idea of what Christmas is all about.

Other sets of ornaments you might make for friends could be focused on the names of the Birthday Boy (Jesus, Christ, Immanuel, Good Shepherd, Mighty Counselor, Savior, Redeemer, Friend, Brother, Prince of Peace, Son of God, Son of Man, Anointed One) or one of the greatest gifts God ever gave: His Word. Try passing some of these in your Christmas cards or hand made ornaments.

3. The most important thing your children need to see at Christmas, is you giving yourself to Christ. This could mean an hour a week ringing a bell for the Army, it could mean caroling the older people in your church, it could mean sponsoring a child in the third world and putting his or her picture on your tree. It could mean any of a hundred things.

The point is that love is not always invisible. There are ways to let our children see it AND help each child find a way that they can give of themselves...something that makes at least one other person feel loved.

Important as these first three visible activities are, there is one more thing children should see during the Christmas season ... the stars at night. They should be seen for the same reason the ornaments and posters, the Bible verses and our renewed hearts should be seen... because they declare the glory of God. If Christmas is to be a holiday, let it be God's Holiday. Don't let us try and take it over ourselves. Don't let us waste Christmas.

Charles White is a retired Christian pre school teacher and invites parents and church workers to visit www.bibleparent.com for a lifelong collection of Christian coloring pages and craft activities designed to make Christian holidays special.

